

SEWER QUESTION BEFORE COUNCIL

Decided that New Relief Drain Is Success in Spite of Overflow.— Must Enlarge Outlet.

APPROPRIATION AUTHORIZED

Resolution Is Adopted to Improve Fourth Street From Chestnut to O'Brien.

The regular session of the city council was held Thursday evening with all the members present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Councilman Davison, chairman of the board of public works reported that sewer on Third street was completed and that cost of the work in its construction was nearly $72. The total costs, including materials amounted to about $700.00. Mr. Davison stated the object of the relief sewer was to prevent the water overflowing at the end of the large sanitary sewer, and that the rain Thursday afternoon showed that the new drain was a success. He added, however, that the ditch into which the relief sewer found an outlet was blocked and that it would be necessary to perform some work in that ditch. He asserted that he was of the opinion that the new sewer would carry away the water and furnish the relief desired.

Councilman Davison also reported that the work on Vine street was progressing rapidly and that the street would soon be graded and graveled.

Councilman Davison presented a resolution that Fourth street from the east line of Chestnut street to O'Brien be improved by regrading and graveling and with concrete curbing and guttering. Upon motion of Davison the resolution was adopted by a vote of 5-2, Councilmen Hodapp and W. R. Day voting in the negative.

Councilman Mills presented an ordinance authorizing an appropriation of $1100. The ordinance provides that $1000 of this amount be used for the expense of the fire department and $100 for the purposes of advertising and printing. Councilman Mills explained that the additional appropriation was necessary because of the purchase of additional fire hose and repairs on the hose wagon. He also said that the appropriation for printing and advertising was required because of the large number of new ordinances which had been adopted. Rules were suspended and the ordinance was adopted.

Upon motion of Councilman Hodapp the park committee was authorized to have the weeds in the city park removed.

Councilman Davison said that the water did not flow properly in the ditch by the side of Harley Jackson's residence, on Seventh street. The street commissioner was instructed to notify Mr. Jackson to repair same. He also stated that some drains opening in the ditch along the property at the corner of Chestnut and Seventh streets and owned by Dr. Casey, were unsatisfactory. He was instructed to improve the same.

Councilman Mills moved that the board of public works prepare specifications for the removal of weeds from the city cemetery and receive bids for doing the work. Carried.

Councilman Mills said that he was called to Third street Thursday evening after the rain, and made an investigation of the relief sewer. He said that the new drain gave relief at first, but that the difficulty was now transferred about three squares further west. He thought that the drain would be a success if the outlet was made larger. He said that there seemed to be some obstruction in the ditch which should be removed at once. The council was of the opinion that the matter should be given immediate attention.

Sherman Day moved that the clerk inform the B. & O. company of the situation and instruct them to build a culvert under their tracks without delay. This would provide a larger outlet and would not check the flow of the water into the Newby ditch. The motion was carried.

Upon motion of councilman Day the Sunday Schools were allowed the use of the city park for the union picnic which they are making arrangements to give in September.

It was stated by the clerk that he had written to Larkin Company to send new axils for the hose wagon, according to the instruction of the council. It was thought advisable to order new axils as the ones now on the wagon had become worn.

DID RELIEF SEWER RELIEVE TROUBLE?

Property In West Part of the City Flooded By Water from New Drain.

LARGER OUTLET IS REQUIRED

Several Plans Proposed to Eliminate Difficulty Experienced with Flood Waters.

The rain Thursday afternoon afforded the first opportunity to test the efficiency of the new relief sewer on West Third street, which has recently been constructed under the direction of the board of public works, and it seems to be the general opinion of the residents of that part of the city that the new drain is not entirely satisfactory. The relief sewer was built from the "dead" end of the sanitary sewer, at Pine street to the concrete sewer on Central avenue, and was intended to relieve the sanitary sewer of the flood waters. For some time the people in that part of the city have complained of the sewer, which seemed to be too small to carry all the water in time of heavy rains.

After the rain yesterday afternoon, the flood waters running into the new sewer were unable to find a sufficient outlet, and backed up over the lots and completely covered several of the sidewalks and streets within several squares of the point where the sewer enters the concrete drain on Central avenue. The city engineer and several of the councilmen were called to examine the sewer and ascertain the difficulty. The city engineer found that the concrete sewer on Central avenue was filled with debris and trash and that the water could not find a free outlet.

At the corner of Pine and Third streets, where the original trouble was believed to have been located, the conditions were improved to some degree, although it is said that the water came through the tile in several places within the square between Pine and Lynn. This is explained to be due to faulty joints and that the tile was not broken in any place.

The city engineer is of the opinion that the trouble can be eliminated if a larger outlet is provided. According to the present plan, the water coming from the relief sewer empties into the concrete sewer at the same point where an outlet is provided for the open ditch running west on Central avenue, and that the volume of water is too large for the drain. This concrete sewer was constructed some time ago in the open ditch, beginning at Third street, and does not have as large a capacity as did the ditch.

The question now confronts the council as to how the outlet should be made larger. Several plans have been proposed, but no definite action has yet been taken, although the board of public works will probably take the matter up this evening at the regular meeting. The question was discussed in a general way at the session of the council last night, and several of the members thought that there would be no more difficulty if the obstructions were removed from the concrete sewer on Central avenue. They were of the opinion that the capacity was sufficient and the flood water from the relief sewer would find a ready outlet. Others believed that the difficulty was in the sewer near the B. & O. S-W tracks, and that the tiling there would have to be enlarged.

Another plan which was suggested was to continue the relief sewer on Third street and let the water find an outlet into the Newby ditch by means of an independent ditch. There was some doubt expressed as to whether the end of the sewer, if continued on Third street, would be below the level of the Newby ditch, in which case such a plan would be impracticable.

The new relief sewer was constructed at a cost of nearly $700, and the difficulty is in as bad condition now as it was before the drain was built. The original trouble has been partly removed, but the difficulty has been transferred several squares further west. Other arrangements are necessary for the benefit of the residents of that part of the city, and some plan will doubtless be adopted soon by the council.

Adventists.

The Indiana conference of Seventh Day Adventists will hold its annual session on the Technical Institute grounds at Indianapolis beginning Thursday, August 25, and continuing until Sunday, September 4. The preliminary meetings began Wednesday night in the tents that have already been pitched. It is expected that the conference will be attended by between eight and ten hundred delegates from all over the state and prominent men from other states. Some of the principal speakers will be the Rev. A. G. Daniels of Washington, D. C., president of the general conference of Seventh Day Adventists; the Rev. W. W. Prescott, assistant editor of the Review and Herald and the Rev. A. R. Concord, head of the Religious Liberty Association.

Birthday Party.

About fifty friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roeder in honor of the twenty-second birthday anniversary of their daughter, Miss Mayme. She received many presents. The evening was spent with music and games and a four-course lunch was served. The guests departed at a late hour, wishing Miss Mayme many more such happy birthdays. The maise was furnished by John Mascher and Miss Sophia Roeder.

TOMATO CROP IS BELOW AVERAGE

Reports Show that Only Half a Crop Will Be Raised In Jackson County This Season.

EXPECT QUALITY TO BE GOOD

Heavy Shortage In Total Yield Is Due to the Heavy Rains In the Earl Season.

If the present indications are not misleading the tomato crop in Jackson county will be unusually small, and the canning factories are expecting to have less than half a pack. The small crop is due largely to the continued wet weather earlier in the season when great damage was done to the growing plants. The loss will be especially large in the southwest and south part of the county where the land was under water for several weeks. In Scott county the crop is also small and this will lessen the capacity of the canning factories at Crothersville, as they purchased many tons of tomatoes each year from the farmers of that county.

In this vicinity the crop will be much less than the average, although it is better than in other parts of the state. It is believed that there will be a seventy-five per cent crop, and with the recent rain may be even larger. In other sections of the county, however, the crops will be only about half as large as usual, and the total crop for the entire county is estimated at half of what is usually marketed.

In this immediate vicinity there are about three hundred acres in tomatoes, and in an average year each acre will yield from four to five tons each, or a total of over 1,200 tons. This year, it is thought, the total yield will be less than 900 tons. In the county there are nearly 900 acres given to the cultivation of tomatoes.

When the quality of the tomatoes is good, the factories can pack about fifty cases from the yield of each acre, but this year that amount will be much less. So far as known at this time, the quality will be good and the plants that were able to withstand the wet weather are in good condition.

It was reported a few days ago that the factories in Scott county will not open for tomatoes, but this report was erroneous, and the crop, however small, will be taken care of by the factories in that county. It is believed that the plants in this county will not be able to open for the tomato season before the first of September, and that the season will be short.

From the reports throughout the state, the tomato crop has been generally injured by the continued rains and the large factories are having some difficulty in getting a sufficient supply to fill their orders, which have already been taken.

Still Uncertain.

Ed A. Hunt, who has been in the East for a couple of weeks looking after the interests of the local striking machinists in conference looking to an adjustment of the difficulty, has returned home. It is known to be a positive fact that the railroad company, through Vice-President Potter, submitted to this conference a proposition whereby the men could return to work. This proposition, according to machinist sources, is not altogether to the liking of the men, and considerable time was spent in discussing its features by the committee before it disbanded to return home.

It was said at machinists' headquarters yesterday that a meeting would be held this afternoon at which time Mr. Hunt would make a complete report of the eastern conferences, both with the railroad officers and with the strikers of the East end. Nothing in the nature of the proposition could be learned from the local machinists, they appearing to be in total ignorance of the eastern transactions. Mr. Hunt could not be located, but his friends were responsible for the statement that he would have nothing to say further than he had returned home.

Reports from the East, coming from interested railroad men, claim that the proposition, as submitted by Mr. Potter, in all probability will be accepted by the men today and that it will provide for a separation of the agreements of the Southwestern system from the main line organization.—Washington Herald.

STRANGE THINGS FOUND IN VARIOUS PORTIONS OF THE EARTH

When Head-Hunters Come

In the Congo one of the most industrious peoples are the Batetela. In gathering rubber they go into the forests inhabited by the Baukutu head-hunting cannibals. Whilst the men are in the forest the provisory camp is guarded by a man who surveys the surroundings from a scaffold, and a drummer. When Baukutu are seen to approach, the drummer beats the alarm, and all the men return to the camp to fight. The weapons used are spear and shield or bow and arrow. A man thus employed earns about two pounds a month, which soon enables him to buy a wife.

ODD SEPULCHRE IN CHINA

Among the strange things to be seen in China are sepulchres for human bones in the form of the one here illustrated. The cemeteries are so overcrowded that when a grave is opened for a fresh burial the bones of former occupants must be removed and they are piled into the rather dilapidated sepulchres.

QUEER ADVENTURE WITH RAT

Even now a cold chill travels down Frank Bennett's spine when talking of his recent experience with a rat. Bennett was doing some work near his barn at Columbus, Ind., when a big rat approached him, and as the farmer reached for a club the rat ran up his right trousers leg.

The rat was a climber, and did not stop until it was perched midway between the man's shoulder blades. It kept dropping back every few minutes, but by constant scratching it held on and endeavored to come out at the top of his shirt. The situation was "creepy" and awkward, but after a while Bennett managed to get a hold of the creature by the neck, and when he threw it on the floor it had been choked to death.

HE WAS A USEFUL CORPSE

The body of Sydney Lascelles, who died eight years ago, was cremated in New York only the other week and the ashes handed over to the representatives of one of his wives. Deceased had a strange career and posed under various aliases, his favorite title belonging to some member of the English peerage. He had a natural gift for courtship and intrigue and although there is a record of only sixteen wives it was stated before the police court, where he was arraigned as a common thief and swindler, that he had married right and left indiscriminately for years. Eight years ago Lascelles died of consumption in North Carolina and he made such a fine, handsome corpse, with his English features and neat Vandyke beard, that the undertaker, despairing of ever being paid for the work of embalming him, had a glass cover made for the coffin and exhibited Lascelles throughout the United States as an advertisement. Judge Jones, the lawyer who made the arrangements for the cremation, averred that the body of Lascelles was the most natural eight-year-old corpse it had ever been his pleasure to look upon. "It may be rather stretching the case," he continued, "to say that the body was used as an advertisement. It was kept in a room upstairs and only visitors who expressed curiosity could take a look if they chose. I have no doubt it acted as an advertisement, because it was such a fine specimen."

COUGHED TOOTH FROM LUNG

Mrs. William H. Miller, of Lock Haven, Pa., whose illness for eleven months puzzled physicians who had been called to treat her, had a violent fit of coughing the other night during which she remarked to her husband that something had torn loose from her lung.

The next instant she was seized with another coughing spell, when she ejected a hard, bone-like particle from her mouth. On examination it proved to be a tooth. Since then the patient, who had suffered much, is improving and hope is now entertained for her recovery.

A year ago, Mrs. Miller, while under the influence of an anaesthetic, had a number of teeth extracted and one of them must have slipped down her throat and entered the lung.

GREAT STRENGTH OF SNAILS

Some statistical person has said that were a human being to be, relatively, possessed of the strength of a snail he would be able to carry St. Paul's Cathedral, figuratively speaking, in his waistcoat pocket. This is as it may be, but certainly snails do not merit the contempt and derision that is poured upon them. Their strength is incredible.

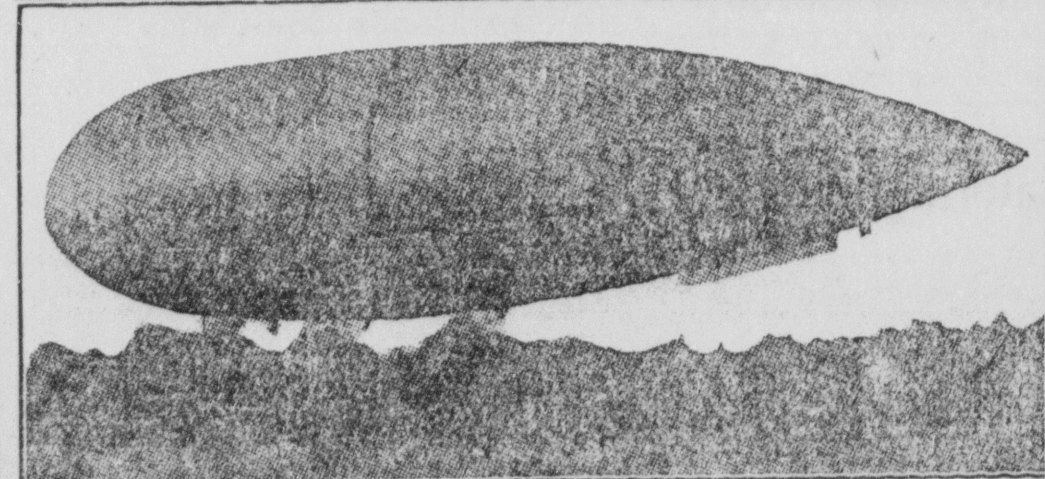

By way of experiment, two common garden snails were harnessed to a leaden toy gun-carriage by means of a piece of thin tape. The load was moved so easily that the gun-carriage was filled with shot. It, however, gave no trouble to the strange steeds, and even when a heavy brass cannon was hooked on, they moved with ease. The total weight of gun-carriage, cannon, and shot was fifteen ounces.

Readers might try a similar experiment for themselves, though they must be patient, for snails have an unpleasant habit of withdrawing into their shells when work is required of them. Care should also be taken that the traces attached to the snails do not impede their progress.

BABY DYED BLUE

A remarkable case occurred recently at Austin, Tex., where the two-year-old son of J. C. Floyd, after swallowing a quantity of indelible ink, was turned a deep blue color. His case is the first of its kind to come to the notice of local physicians. The skin of the body turned blue within three days after swallowing the ink and according to medical theory will remain that color as long as he lives, the tissues having been poisoned and permanently dyed with nitrate of silver, contained in the liquid he drank.

Night Flight of Airship

One of the most successful nocturnal flights ever made by an airship was made recently by the Beta, one of the dirigible balloons of the British army. The airship traveled from the military balloon station at Farnborough to St. Pauls in London, circled about the great dome cathedral and returned to the starting place. Colonel Capper of the army aeronautical section was the pilot of the Beta.

HOT DAY DAINTIES

NEW COMBINATIONS IN HOME-MADE COOL DESSERTS.

Lemon is Standby, but Is Pushed Hard by Raspberry and Strawberry—Pineapple Forging to the Front.

While many families are flocking to ice cream parlors and soda fountains, the housewife who knows the value of home-made cool dainties is looking for new ways, new combinations, and more delightful constituents for the crowning pleasure of the home table. The ice for the porch or lawn, as well as the cooling beverage, whether for the family alone or for callers, is an institution in certain homes.

We cling to the strawberry until the latest come to us from the region of the cool northern lakes, but already a large number of the fruits of summer's bountiful garner are in the market. It is wonderful how one's versatility in utilizing these will develop if but kept in exercise.

The raspberry flavor is popular and for ices is considered among the most delicate, more so than the strawberry. The confectioners and some home cooks as well as the cooking schools are extending the use of both these berries every year. They are used in the delicate cream patties and may get into less perishable candies, although the majority of people reject any kind of candy nowadays that is not as freshly made as a cake. The raspberry must be carefully strained through fine cloth or wire before it is used.

The lemon is a standby, the pineapple yearly more popular and valued because it is not fragile, the currant has a limited sway, and the apricot and peach have their uses as well as the very adaptable peach. But the cool desserts are not necessarily of fruits. The junket, chocolate and coffee, and even the nut and coconut ice creams, are delicious. The ginger with lemon and other fruits, for sherbet, is being used more and more and is returning as a summer drink, perhaps for the same reason that the men in the hayfield drank the cooling compound of ginger, molasses and water and found it more lastingly refreshing than anything else.

It is really great fun to experiment with these things. The proof of the pudding, however, is in the eating.

Salad Hints.

Whoever would become an expert in the science of salad making, must keep in mind a few rules which apply equally well to all varieties.

Until ready to mix and serve, keep each kind of food separate. If leftover vegetables are to be used, rinse sauce or dressing from them in cold water until needed.

The term "marinate" so often seen in salad recipes means merely a thorough wetting. To marinate and serve with mayonnaise, sprinkle the salad greens with oil and vinegar, let them stand for half an hour, and put on the mayonnaise just before serving.

Avoid fine chopping of salad mixtures. Meats, vegetables and fruits should be diced with a sharp knife. Fish should be shredded with a silver fork.

Furniture Covering.

If you do not wish to go to the expense of having covers for your furniture made by the upholsterer try the expedient of pinning on summer covers.

Cut pieces the exact size of chair or section of sofa, allowing enough to turn in a hem all around edge, if it be not bound with wash braids.

Fasten the pieces in place with big-headed white pins placed as close as upholsterer's tacks. The pins are ornamental and form a trimming. If less contrast is desired get pins of gilt or color of braid.

To Keep a Dish Hot.

When it is required that a dish or plate of food be kept hot for half an hour or so, waiting, perhaps, for a tardy dinner, a better plan than putting it into the oven is to set it on a saucerpan of boiling water and let the saucerpan stand on the top of the oven or covered part of the stove.

The plate should be covered with another plate or close-fitting metal cover, and to prevent the food from becoming overdry, plenty of liquid added.

Vegetarian Dessert.

A pretty desert served at a vegetarian dinner last summer was made by forming circles of boiled rice on little fruit plates, piling up strawberries in the center of each, and pouring over it a ladleful of pineapple juice well sweetened with sugar. All the ingredients were ice cold, and the dish proved as refreshing as it was delicious.

To Prevent Jars Breaking.

When canning fruit, if a silver tablespoon is placed in a glass jar before pouring in the hot fruit, it will prevent the jar from breaking. This also applies when it is desired to put hot desert in a cut glass dish.

A Sweet Sandwich.

Make angel food batter and bake it on thin sheets; cut the cake into small pieces of any desired shape, then split them and put in a layer of chopped preserved ginger and figs, in equal proportions.—Mrs. Cye Clemmons.

CRIME AND DRINK IN CANADA

Statistics Show That Convictions Due to Liquor Has Increased Considerably.

Criminal statistics for the year ended September, 1906, have just been issued by the census bureau at Ottawa. They look somewhat antiquated now, but as they are the latest available, some of the facts given are still of interest. The figures deal separately with indictable offences and summary convictions, the latter referring to cases disposed of by justices of the peace. British Columbia, Manitoba and Ontario show a crime record remarkable figures relate to the maritime provinces, where the Scott act is in force in most counties, but especially Prince Edward Island, the only province in the dominion with provincial prohibition. Ontario's crime ratio for 10,000 of the population shows a gradual increase: 1897-1900, 12.94; 1900-1905, 13.38; 1906, 15.89.

Of the total number of persons convicted during the five-year period ending with 1905 there was an average of 56 per cent. who used liquor moderately and 33 per cent. who were immoderate drinkers. For the second period ending with 1905 there was an average of 60 per cent. moderate and 23 immoderate drinkers, as compared with 57 per cent. moderate and 23 per cent. moderate drinkers for 1906. The balance of the 100 in each period were either nondrinkers or not given.

Dealing with summary convictions, which are for offences such as assaults, breaches of the peace, infractions of various laws, such as liquor license act, etc., and such other offences as vagrancy, drunkenness, and disorderly conduct, the report states that the number of summary convictions has increased considerably throughout the several provinces during the last five years.

During the years ending with 1905, drunkenness represented about 35 per cent. of the total summary convictions, as compared with 40 per cent. for the year 1906. Out of the total number of persons convicted for drunkenness, female offenders represented 8.87 per cent. for the ten years ending with 1905, as against 5.10 per cent. for the year 1906.

Taking the year 1906, the following table shows the percentage of convictions for drunkenness of each province, with the percentage of population of the provinces:

Provinces.	Percentage of Convictions for Drunkenness.	Percentage of Population.
Prince Edward Island....	0.48	1.69
Nova Scotia .....	11.62	7.76
New Brunswick .....	7.34	5.62

Manitoba .....	15.55	6.11
British Columbia .....	6.76	4.09

LESS LIQUOR IN SCOTLAND

Citizens of Edinburgh Congratulate Themselves on Satisfactory Report of Chief Constable.

Edinburgh people are congratulating themselves on the satisfactory nature of the report just issued by the chief constable for the city for the year 1909. It shows that during that year arrests for drunkenness, crime and disorders of all kinds were fewer than they have been since reliable statistics of this kind have been kept by the authorities.

The total number of persons arrested for all kinds of offenses, drunkenness included, was 13,411 in 1909, as compared with 15,279 in 1908, a decrease of 1,868. That the poorer people in Edinburgh seem to be getting more sober is shown by the fact that whereas in 1908 the number of persons arrested for being drunk and incapable, drunk and disorderly, or drunk in charge of children or vehicles was 7,331, the number last year fell to 5,521, a decrease of 1,810.

Much speculation has been indulged in as to the causes which have led to this welcome decrease of drunkenness in Edinburgh and it may be said that the same decrease has been noted in other large towns in the country. The extra duty on spirits imposed by the budget was undoubtedly, as the chancellor of the exchequer now knows to his cost, followed by an almost immediate decrease in the consumption of whisky.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

AUGUST 21, 1910

JESUS NEARING JERUSALEM. Lesson:—Matt. 20: 17-34.

GOLDEN TEXT:—The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give his life a ransom for many.—Matt. 20: 28.

This lesson may be summed up in two great truths. His humiliation and His compassion for the blind. Both James and John and their mother were as truly blind as the blind men by the wayside, though not in the same measure or in the same way. The men by the wayside were blind to things temporal, the others in a great measure to things eternal. Again for the third or fourth time Jesus, on His way to Jerusalem for the last time, predicts His death and resurrection, events which were ever before Him, for He was set apart for this before the foundation of the world (I Pet. i. 20). Both in the law, the prophets and the psalms it was many times predicted and typified of Him from the time when He Himself provided redemption clothing for Adam and Eve by the shedding of blood (Gen. iii. 21). And after His resurrection He specially opened these very Scriptures to His disciples (Luke xxiv. 25-27, 44-48). But until the Spirit came at Pentecost to dwell in them they did not seem able to receive the teaching. It is one thing to have the Lord Jesus Christ as our teacher, and "Who teacheth like Him?" (Job xxxvi. 22), but it is necessary to have His Holy Spirit in us in order that the truth may grasp us in power and be lived out in us. We must remember that the sufferings precede the glory, but if we suffer with Him we shall be glorified together. The greater part of this lesson is found in Matthew and Mark, but the first portion, which we are now considering, is found in Luke also. The account by Mark is the most full, and he tells us that the disciples were amazed and afraid. We also will often be amazed and afraid at many things unless filled with and taught by the Spirit. Luke says they understood none of these things (Luke xviii. 34).

The request of James and John, either directly or through their mother, or both, that they might sit on His right and left hand in His kingdom led to His question, "Are ye able to drink of the cup and be baptized with the baptism?" "Yes," they said, "we are able." Poor humanity! How little we understand it! Things heavenly are so far beyond us, and things earthly are too much for us, and as to our own hearts they are deceitful and desperately wicked. But He who knows us thoroughly loves us in spite of all our weakness and wickedness and is able and willing to make new creatures of us if we will but let Him. Again He teaches that humility is true greatness and that even He, "The Son of Man, came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His

LIE TOO COMMON TO BE NOTICED

Miners Bandy Short and Ugly Word in Convention.

ONE CONTINUOUS WRANGLE

Convention of United Mine Workers Has Developed into the Most Disorderly Body Ever Assembled in Indianapolis, and That Is Saying a Good Deal When Certain Political Conventions Are Borne in Mind.

Indianapolis, Aug. 18.—The convention of the United Mine Workers yesterday was the most disorderly body that has ever assembled in this city, not even political conventions when the spirit of the factions was active, rivaling the scenes among the miners. The lie was passed so frequently that it became too common to be noticed, and while the factions were wrangling no delegate seemed willing to bring on a personal collision by presenting the imputations on his veracity with his fists.

This is the eighth day of the convention, and nothing whatever has been accomplished. The entire time has been devoted to discussions of the Illinois strike situation, and both sides to the trouble are so manifestly sparing for the advantage that many delegates are angry and would like to see some steps taken to settle the trouble. John Mitchell made a plea for harmony and got respectful attention, plainly because both Lewis and Walker want him with them in the fight with each other. The words of the old leader had some effect while they lasted, but this was soon lost in the bitterness that came in the discussion.

The assessments for last week were barely enough to meet the expenses of the convention, and there is much complaint among the delegates because they are being held here while the little money they have is being wasted.

STRIKE ABANDONED

Carpenters' Union at Evansville Gives Up Long Struggle.

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 18.—The carpenters strike which began here in April and involved every union in the city was officially declared off yesterday at a stormy meeting in which blows were freely exchanged. National Organizer Loos, who urged the men to remain out, was attacked by one of the strikers and only timely interference prevented bloodshed. The men return to work without gaining any of the things for which they struck. The open shop movement is so strong that the factory owners had no trouble in getting men and this led to the surrender of the strikers.

Another Aeronaut Falls.

Brookville, Ind., Aug. 18.—Charles Wells, an aeronaut, fell seventy feet when his parachute broke at the beginning of a flight at the street fair here. Arthur Williams ran under to catch him and break the fall. Williams has a sprained back. Wells is injured internally.

A BOTANICAL BLOOD REMEDY

Nature in her wisdom and beneficence has provided, in her great vegetable kingdom, a cure for most of the ills and ailments of humanity. Work and study have perfected the compounding of these botanical medicines and placed them at our disposal. We rely on them first because of their ability in curing disease, and next because we can use them with the confidence that such remedies do not injure the system as do the strong mineral concoctions. Among the very best of these botanical preparations is S. S. S., a medicine made entirely of roots, herbs and barks in such combination as to make it the greatest of all blood purifiers and safest of all tonics. It does not contain the least particle of harmful mineral to injuriously affect any of the delicate parts of the system. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Malaria, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, or any blood affection or disease even reaching down and cleansing the circulation of all inherited blood troubles. As a tonic S. S. S. is unequalled. It builds up the system in the proper way, by purifying the blood and supplying a sufficient amount of vigor and nourishment to the body. If you are suffering with any blood trouble, or are in any way run-down in health, you could not do better than take S. S. S., a purely botanical blood remedy. It cures without ever leaving any unpleasant or injurious effects. It is perfectly safe for young or old. Book on the blood free to all who write.

WHOLE COURT IN TEARS FOR BABY

Pathetic Case Before Judge Stubbs at Indianapolis.

SHOCKING PARENTAL BRUTALITY

Evidence of So Horrible a Character Was Introduced That the Venerable Judge of the Juvenile Court, With Tears Rolling Down His Cheeks, Silenced the Witnesses and Imposed Law's Fullest Penalty on Parents.

Indianapolis, Aug. 19.—"This is horrible, and I don't care to hear any more of the testimony," said Judge Stubbs in the juvenile court, as the tears poured down his cheeks, "and any woman who would beat a little eighteen-months-old baby in the condition I have seen it in today must have a heart of stone. I will have to inflict the severest punishment known under the law for the neglect of this baby, and both of you are to serve 180 days in prison and pay a fine of $500."

These words ended one of the most pathetic cases ever tried in the juvenile court, and before the trial had progressed very far nearly everyone in the courtroom was in tears.

Charged with brutally beating an eighteen-months-old baby until the little one was unable to stand and cried pitifully when it was touched any place on its sore body, Matthew and Marie Jones, 2920 East Twenty-sixth street, received this sentence in the court.

Mrs. Marie Jones is the stepmother of the child. She married Matthew Jones last June, when they went to Kentucky to get married, and left the baby in the care of a neighbor. At this time Mrs. Jones told the neighbor that she did not want to be bothered with the child and unless Mr. Jones got rid of it she would refuse to live with him. According to the mother the father beat the baby one night to make it go to sleep and the next morning when she showed him the marks he had made, he said he was sorry and that he would never do it again.

On several occasions Mrs. Jones would leave the baby alone in the house and be away from home nearly all day. The testimony of a little girl thirteen years old who lives next to where the Jones family lived, touched the hearts of the courtroom full of officers and visitors, and had most of them sobbing when the court said that he had heard enough. She testified that on several occasions when she was in her back yard she would see Mrs. Jones pick up a yardstick and strike the baby five or six times across its little body and face. At other times, Mrs. Jones would seize the child by the hair and give it several blows in the face with her hand.

One neighbor testified that one day when she was visiting Mrs. Jones the baby started to cry, and that Mrs. Jones took a razor strop and started to beat the child with it. When the neighbor asked Mrs. Jones if she was in the habit of beating the child with the strop, she replied that she would beat it until she wore it out unless it stopped crying. On another occasion Mrs. Jones took the baby, and, because it would not stand up, she seized it by the arms and knocked it down upon the floor five times.

It did not take Judge Stubbs long after several witnesses had given their testimony to decide that both of the parents were guilty of neglecting the baby, and with a wave of his hand, he ordered them to be locked up without giving them a chance to testify in their own behalf. The baby was given into the hands of one of the neighbors until proper disposition can be made of it.

TRAIN STRUCK AUTO

And Wife of Indiana Rural Mail Carrier Was Instantly Killed.

Greensburg, Ind., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Mary Robbins, aged fifty-seven, was instantly killed by a Big Four train at a grade crossing four miles south of this city. She had accompanied her husband, Greeley Robbins, a rural mail carrier, in an automobile on his route, and while crossing the track they did not notice the approaching train until it was upon them.

Mr. Robbins attempted to put on speed and clear the track, but was too late. Mrs. Robbins jumped and the train struck her, hurling her a distance of thirty feet away into a pile of stones. Every bone in her body was broken and death was instantaneous. Although the machine was demolished, Mr. Robbins escaped hurt.

Petty Quarrel Ended Seriously. Columbus, Ind., Aug. 19.—James Shumaker of Edinburg is in a critical condition from knife stabs on his hip, side and left breast, inflicted by Samuel Weaver, also of Edinburg. The fight started from an argument the two men had over who owns the interurban railway between Indianapolis and Seymour.

Wheat Overwhelms Boy. Boonville, Ind., Aug. 19.—Chester Goerlitz, fifteen years old, fell into a wheat bin at the Elkhorn mill and before the machinery could be stopped 1,500 bushels of wheat fell on him. Mill hands worked heroically to save him, but he was smothered when found.

CANNON POINTS TO HIS RECORD

In Answer to Nick Longworth's Repudiation.

SAYS IT SPEAKS FOR ITSELF

Upon Second Thought Uncle Joe Gives Out Prepared Statement in Answer to Announcement From Beverly and Says He Has No Quarrel With Congressional Candidates Who Do Not Like Him.

Danville, Ill., Aug. 19.—Speaker Cannon, when first apprised of Nicholas Longworth's repudiation of him, telegraphed from Beverly, remarked:

"Oh, hell, I decline to answer any statement which Mr. Nicholas Longworth may or may not have made until I see it. I do not answer any statements I believe to be fakes that mischievous parties may make. It is enough for me to answer the president of the United States if he has any statement to make touching upon the Republicanism of the speaker of the house of representatives when he makes that statement under his own hand. I will not fight windmills filled by breezes blown from lungs of political or personal enemies or cowards."

Later, when the complete Longworth statement was submitted, Mr. Cannon called L. White Busby, his private secretary, and for the next hour they went over the matter. Mr. Cannon then dictated one interview after another, tearing each up until he secured one which suited him. This he gave out with the added statement that he hoped this would prove satisfactory. The speaker said:

"The legislation enacted and the record made by the party during the eight years I have been speaker speaks for itself. I have contributed what I could toward the enactment of that legislation. I have co-operated with the Republican majority in congress in the effort to put on the statute books the policies of the party, and I have no apology to make for the part I have taken in the legislative councils of the nation."

"In the present campaign, as far as I am concerned, I will do what I can to bring about the election of a Republican house of representatives in the Sixty-first congress, and without a Republican majority in the next house there will be no Republican speaker. In the event of my election as a member of the house I shall attend and abide by the action of the caucus and, from his statement, Mr. Longworth will do the same, as will every Republican member. Therefore I have no quarrel with Mr. Longworth as to who shall be speaker of the next house. There is no room for disagreement touching this matter between Longworth and myself."

"If any Republican candidate for congress feels that his position as candidate on the Republican ticket would be strengthened by pledging that he will not support me in a Republican caucus, I have no objection to his making the pledge. The only test that I would make as to the Republicanism of candidates for congress is, will he, if elected, attend the Republican caucus and abide by the result of the same in the organization of the house and the enactment of legislation in pursuance of Republican policies."

LOSS OF MILLIONS

Sustained by Reason of Cloak Makers' Strike in New York.

New York, Aug. 19.—The following statement as to the cost of the cloak makers' strike has been made on behalf of the manufacturers' association: "The effect of the six weeks during which they have been without work is beginning now to make itself felt among the strikers. The 70,000 men in the trade earned before the strike a weekly wage of about $1,500,000. Their loss now amounts to $9,000,000 in wages, while the loss to the community through the closing of the factories amounts approximately to $150,000,000."

HER PHYSICIAN APPROVES

Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sabbatus, Maine.—"You told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills before child-birth, and we are all surprised to see how much good it did. My physician said 'Without doubt it was the Compound that helped you.' I thank you for your kindness in advising me and give you full permission to use my name in your testimonials."—Mrs. H. W. MITCHELL, Box 8, Sabbatus, Me.

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored my health and strength, and proved worth mountains of gold to me. For the sake of other suffering women I am willing you should publish my letter."—Mrs. CHARLES BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

Women who are passing through this critical period or who are suffering from any of those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of the fact that for thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills. In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Going to Stir Things Up.
Evansville, Ind., August 18.—The Rev. W. C. Helt, organizer of the new Rational Reform League, announced that he would at once bring suit for slander against the Rev. E. S. Shumaker, head of the Anti-Saloon League of Indiana, as the result of the publication of a letter in which the Evansville man, who was formerly a superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, is accused of selling out to the brewers.

Sues Saloon Keeper For Damages.
Indianapolis, Aug. 18.—Rose C. Barrett, holding Michael Mannix, a saloon keeper, indirectly responsible for the death of her husband, Martin Barrett, has sued Mannix and his sureties for $2,000. Mrs. Barrett charges her husband, when crazed by liquor sold by Mannix, quarreled with Thomas A. Box, who shot and killed Barrett, Jan. 11, 1909.

Creditors Seeking Utopian.
Evansville, Ind., Aug. 18.—J. A. Brown, promoter of the new Utopian city opposite Evansville in Kentucky, is missing and numerous creditors are seeking him. Work on the new concrete "city" is at a standstill. Much money has been spent there.

She Wouldn't Stand For It.
Sullivan, Ind., Aug. 18.—Because her husband, John Banks, carried out his threat to go fishing, Mrs. Banks, of this city, attempted to end her life by swallowing a quantity of bug poison. A physician saved the woman's life.

Emphasizing a Fact.
There are peculiarities, idiosyncrasies of expression, which emphasize and accentuate facts. It is not enough to say "he is deaf." We invariably add "as a post." It would appear sufficient to say "he is blind," but we prefer in nearly all cases to admit of no contradiction by announcing that he is "stone blind." To be "dead" should suffice. "Dead as a doornail" clinches the fact.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they do most, and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

A New York millionaire has attempted to solve the high cost of living by cutting down his "string" of autos from thirty-seven to seventeen. That kind of a move would not solve the question in Jackson county. It doesn't fit our case.

From declarations made by Samuel Gompers, E. A. Perkins and other labor leaders in Indianapolis this week, Senator Beveridge is evidently very strong with the laboring men of the state, and their support will be a potent influence in his behalf this fall.

The question regarding the sewer on West Third street is still unsolved, as shown by the trouble experienced Thursday afternoon. It seems that the difficulty is the result of an inadequate outlet, and it is evident that the condition will not be improved until this is provided. The residents of that part of the city have reason to complain of the trouble and the matter should be given immediate attention and the relief given which is asked.

WHEAT SPECIAL.

The wheat special will be out about fifteen days and will carry a corps of expert agriculturists who will tell in detail what to do to grow more wheat. When the railroad companies furnished a free train for these specialists they did not do it out of philanthropy, but as an investment. They know that with proper instructions the crop could be doubled—meaning that much more haulage for the roads. Knowing this for a certainty, farmers would do well to pin their faith to the Purdue experts and act on their advice in the matter of preparing the soil, obtaining and sowing the choicest seed, and taking the opportune time to harvest the crop.

Indiana has long been a leader in the production of winter wheat. Of late years, however, the yields have been decreasing, or least stationary, and other states forging to the front in the matter of production. Those who have made an intimate study of the cause declare it is purely lack of knowledge on the part of the producers. Nowadays it is intensive farming that grows the big crops and makes money for everybody. So why not have it in Indiana? Farmers who think will eagerly fall in with the efforts of the experiment station to give them more light on the subject of their work, when that light means an increase in their personal wealth.—Indianapolis Star.

SOUTH CHESTNUT STREET

OBJECT TO VALUATION OF LIVE STOCK KILLED

Trustees Wish to Increase Money for Schools—Bingham Gives an Opinion.

Attorney-General James Bingham has been appealed to by a number of township trustees in the south part of the state, where dogs abound and where the appraisal of land for assessment purposes is comparatively low, to help the trustees to obtain for school purposes a greater percent of money collected annually by taxing the dogs. The cause for complaint on the part of the trustees seems to be that trustees other than those appealing to the attorney-general value stock and poultry killed or injured by dogs at too high a figure, and according to the views of the complaining officials, by paying on such valuation deplete the township dog fund too rapidly. It seems that high bred stock and turkeys and chickens with long pedigrees have been killed by dogs and fancy prices paid for them by the trustees. The objecting trustees are asking whether there is not some means of valuing these animals at lower figures—at such a figure as the butcher or poultry dealer would have been willing to pay for the animals alive.

The law governing the distribution of the dog fund provides that payment for all animals killed or maimed by dogs shall be made by the township trustee, who shall, if a surplus remains at the end of the year, turn it into the county treasury to become part of a general deficiency fund to make up deficits in other townships in the county where the dog tax collected is not sufficient to pay for the killed or maimed animals. If anything remains after the deficiencies have been made up it goes into the school fund.

The attorney-general has held that the owner of any animal or fowl killed may value it according to its pedigree, and the purpose for which it is kept, and that the trustee shall be compelled to pay such valuation if the claim of the owner is properly backed up as required by law.

The brain of a puppy examined in the pathological laboratory of the state board of health Thursday disclosed that the dog had been infected with rabies when killed, and as a result of the examination, six persons in Greensburg, who were bitten by another puppy in the same litter, have been infected, it is feared. The puppy that did the biting was killed last week and on Sunday that one sent to the state laboratory developed symptoms similar to those displayed by the one killed. A report was made to a veterinarian, who followed the advice of the state board and locked the puppy up until last night, when it was killed. Greensburg is the center of territory in which the state board has found a large number of cases of rabies in the last twelve months.

WORLD'S GREAT PACERS

Dan Patch and Four Others Coming to Indiana State Fair.

Five of the world's greatest pacers, all of them belonging to M. W. Savage of Minneapolis, will make up the chief attraction in the speed department at the Indiana State Fair. This list of turf stars is headed by the champion of champions, Dan Patch, whose record of 1:55 has never been equaled, and with him will be Minor Heir, 1:59 1/4; Hedgewood Boy, 2:02 1/4; Lady Maud C., 2:02 3/4, and George Gano, 2:03 3/4. Dan Patch will never again be started against time, but he will be on exhibition at the Indiana fair.

The other Savage horses, however, will show their speed on different occasions at the fair. On Monday the four will race against each other. During the week Hedgewood Boy and Lady Maud C. will race against Minor Heir and George Gano, the two teams being hitched to wagons. On one afternoon of the fair Minor Heir, with a running pacemaker, will attempt to lower the world's mile record. Minor Heir is now the pacing sensation of the racing world.

Dan Patch will at the fair have a stall in the big brick barn, where his apartment will be highly decorated with the trophies he has won. He will frequently be jogged on the racecourse for the crowds to see him in action. He has won enough fame to retire from the racecourse, and for ten years has been without a peer in the harness world. In manners, disposition, in courage, gameness and speed he has stood alone, and is the recognized standard of harness horse perfection. He has paced 73 miles under two minutes, lowered the world's record fourteen times, and now holds seven world's records, and he is to today in superb physical condition.

Minor Heir seems destined to take Dan Patch's place in the realm of pacers. Two years ago he was unknown—today Minor Heir is admitted by most experts to have the greatest flights of speed of any horse ever trained, with the possible exception of Dan Patch. Minor Heir's chances of setting a world's mark at the Indiana Fair is regarded as exceptionally good. Hedgewood Boy has this season been showing more remarkable speed qualities than ever, and Lady Maud C. and George Gano are in fine fettle.

Gaynor Continually Gaining. New York, Aug. 19.—It was announced at St. Mary's hospital that if Mayor Gaynor's condition continues to improve as it has during the past three days, by the beginning of next week the physicians will believe their patient well out of danger and on the quick road to recovery. Today he was allowed to sit up in bed, propped by pillows, for a brief period. Fishy. "I can't see why men like to get up early and go fishing," says Mrs. Malaprop. "Now, my husband is a regular angiomaniac—I mean, he's a debauchee to the episcapary art. Fish? Why, he's an apostle of old Isaac Newton himself!"—Cleveland Leader.

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE.

Seymour People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are so unmistakable that they leave no ground for doubt. Sick kidneys excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back aches constantly, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighed down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect of these warnings brings danger of dropsy, Bright's disease, or diabetes. Any one of these symptoms is warning enough to begin treating the kidneys at once. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's Seymour proof: Mrs. William Himler, 604 S. Walnut street, Seymour, Ind., says: "A member of my family suffered intensely from disordered kidneys. This person had considerable medical treatment and also used home remedies, but received no permanent benefit until Doan's Kidney Pills were taken. This preparation restored strength and energy and corrected all the kidney disorders."

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC.

Parade Committee Gets Plans Started for Big Demonstration.

The parade committee for the big Sunday School picnic, which is to be given at the city park on Monday, September 5, by the Sunday Schools of Seymour, met Thursday evening and began the preparations for a big Sunday School demonstration on that day.

Each Sunday School is asked to provide a large banner for use in its delegation in the parade, and a large American flag is to be presented to the school which prepares the most unique banner. This flag will be held by the school which wins it this year. If, in the future, another union Sunday School picnic is held, the flag will be surrendered then to the Sunday School which has the most unique banner for that occasion. If no other union picnic is ever held, the flag will become the property of the school which secures it this year.

Each Sunday School is asked to provide a small American flag, the 7½ size being selected by the committee as the best size.

Each Sunday School scholar, old or young, who marches in the parade is to receive a ticket which will be good at the refreshment stand on the ground.

Conveyances will be provided for the little children who are too small to make the walk over the line of march, which will be announced later.

The city council last evening granted the use of the city park for this occasion, and plans are being matured as rapidly as possible for a great picnic.

TROPHIES OF THE ROOSEVELT HUNT

By EDWARD B. CLARK
COPYRIGHT BY W.A. PATTERSON

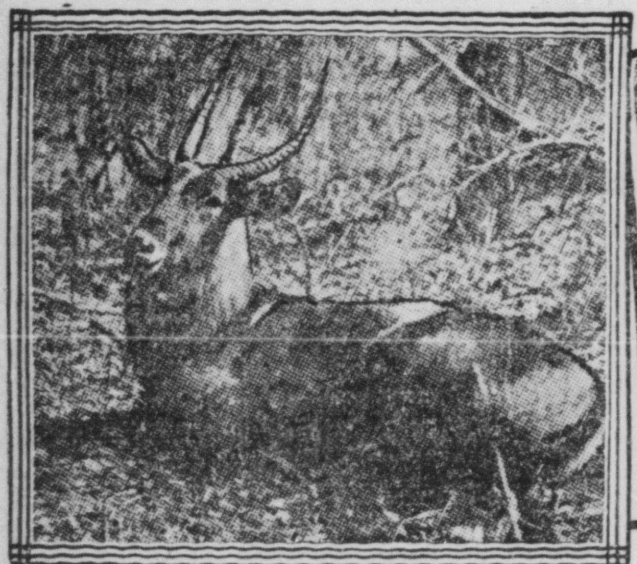

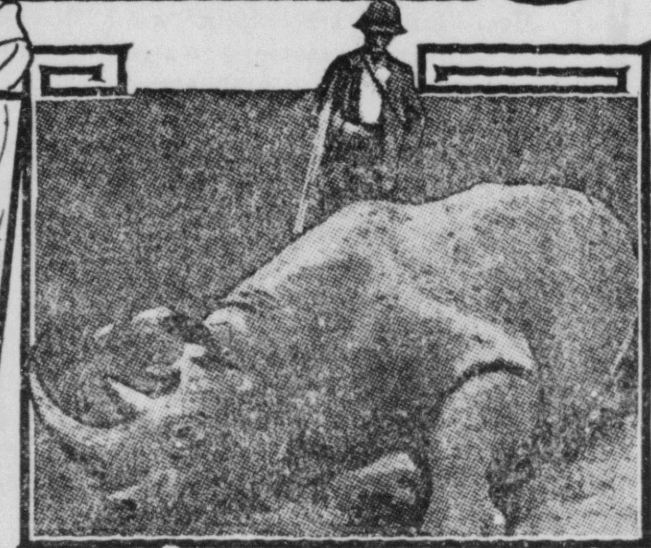

the near future must make up their minds that while they may get glimpses of the Roosevelt collection it will be a long time before the quarry will be mounted and presented to public view so as to show it to the best advantage.

Of course it must be understood that by far the greater number of specimens of animal life which Theodore Roosevelt and his fellow hunters obtained are those of small species of the natural history kingdom. For every elephant obtained, for instance, there are at least fifty mice, and for every lion there are at least fifty specimens of the dwellers of the field like the rabbits, the squirrels, the foxes and other animals which have their interest to the scientists, but which do not make so brave a showing when on museum view as that of the greater wild beasts.

It is the intention of the National museum authorities eventually to mount and to put on exhibition in family groups the great mammals which the East African expedition secured and sent to Washington. Now the mounting of an elephant, a lion, a leopard, an antelope or a rhinoceros or any of the other big creatures of the wild, is an entirely different thing from the work of years ago. No man nowadays properly speaks of "stuffed" animals. They are no longer stuffed. The old, unsightly specimens are being cast out of the museums of the country. Taxidermy has been lifted from the plane of the trades and put on the plane of the arts.

In the old days it used to be the custom to take a deer and to wire it and fill it with various kinds of "stuffing," to put in glass eyes and to treat it with arsenic and then to stand it on its four legs in a glass case. All this sort of thing has been done away with as being unworthy. The advanced taxidermist of today approaches his work just as the sculptor or the painter approaches his. The animal family that is to be mounted today is studied carefully in life. No high-class museum will employ a taxidermist who has not lived among the wild animals and who does not know their every pose, their stride, their appearance when lying down, when standing up, when asleep and when on the "broad jump" to get away from the enemy.

THE FURU.

BULL FLAND &amp;

It requires years of this kind of study before the taxidermist of today is considered worthy of his hire. When he takes a dead animal in hand to prepare it for exhibition he takes notice of the state of its coat, whether it is a spring coat, a summer coat, an autumn coat or a winter coat. If he is to form a group of animals of the same kind he would never think for an instant of putting one with a summer coat in the same group with one wearing a winter coat.

In some of the groups in the museums of the country today, so-called family groups, the male deer will be shown in its winter coat while its mate standing by wears the garb of summer. To the eye of the naturalist or to the eye of the observing hunter such a condition is ludicrous and even the layman who is not familiar with animals in their wild haunts becomes conscious that there is something wrong with the animal family at which he is looking.

Nowadays not only is it the aim to mount the animal naturally, but every vein and every muscle must be made to appear as in life. All of this requires the utmost skill and a great amount of time.

It is the intention of the National museum authorities to mount many of the larger Roosevelt specimens in family groups. This means that in a great many instances these groups will be shown in their native habitats. In other words, not only must the animals be mounted properly but they must be given the environment which they have in the field. This means in some cases the actual construction of trees, with leaf, trunk and branch perfect, and it means a reproduction of rocks and ground and it may be even water. The whole thing requires months of time, the greatest skill and patience, and when the work is complete the sightseer has before him a group of African animals appearing just as they do in their native wilds.

From what has been said in the foregoing it readily can be understood why it is that it will take a long time to put the larger animals secured by the Roosevelt expedition in condition to be viewed by the multitudes of visitors who come to Washington.

Carl E. Akely of Chicago engaged in the African hunt for a short time as a member of the Roosevelt party. Mr. Akely joined the colonel in Africa in accordance with an arrangement made before the former president left America. Mr. Akely went to Africa not only for the purpose of getting some elephant specimens for the

New York Museum of Natural History, but for the purpose of studying elephants in their wild surroundings. Carl E. Akely is a taxidermist and is considered one of the finest if not the finest in the world. Moreover, he is a scientist and his work has won recognition in all the countries of the civilized world.

What Mr. Akely has been doing in the last few months gives an illustration of what the modern taxidermist does in order to perfect himself in his art. When the taxidermist returns to America with the elephants which he has killed he will mount them in a great group in what is to be known as the elephant room of the great New York institution. He not only will prepare the elephants for exhibition in a group, but he will reproduce their African surroundings. It may be the work of years, but when it is finished it will be worthy. The museum officials of the country today believe that time is as nothing when they desire to obtain the best natural results.

A curious thing happened while Carl E. Akely was with Theodore Roosevelt in Africa. In one of the articles which he wrote the colonel told of an experience which Mr. Akely had with a wounded leopard. The encounter which the taxidermist had with the leopard occurred about fourteen years ago and Colonel Roosevelt told the story as it had been told him, of course putting it in the past tense. The story was read wrong by some one and the American papers had an account of the desperate encounter of Taxidermist Akely with a leopard while hunting with the Roosevelt party, and there was a good deal of comment to the effect that it perhaps was a good thing for Mr. Roosevelt that he was not the one who had had this fierce fight with the African beast.

About fourteen years ago Mr. Akely, who was then connected with the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago, went to Africa with Dr. Daniel G. Elliot, who was curator of zoology of the institution of which Marshall Field was the benefactor. One night in the heart of Africa Mr. Akely was attempting to secure a leopard which was prowling around the camp trying to capture one of the goats with which the expedition was supplied. Mr. Akely shot the leopard and thought he had killed it. He went toward it but the beast sprang on him and bore him to earth. He had a terrific fight for his life. He was terribly lacerated, but he finally succeeded actually in choking the leopard to death, a feat which, as may well be understood, is somewhat difficult of performance.

In the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago there is on exhibition a group of American deer. Perhaps it would be better to say four groups. They show the family life of the red deer of America at all four seasons and the environment of each season is reproduced perfectly. One group of deer was secured in summer, another in fall, another in winter and another in spring, and it is possible in walking about the groups to see three of the animals, the buck, the doe and the young, as they appear at the four seasons. Of course the fawn is seen in a variation of sizes until it becomes a lusty yearling.

This illustration of a deer group from the Field Museum of Natural History is given in order to show what may be expected in the National museum at Washington when the larger mammals of the Roosevelt collection are placed on exhibition. Of course instead of the American red deer the visitor will see elephants, lions, leopards and several of the many families of antelopes which inhabit the African country. There will be similar groups of the smaller animals, while for the purposes of the student of animal life there will be in drawers and in cases throughout the museum the skins and the skulls of the smaller mammals which are invaluable for purposes of comparison.

The trophies which former President Roosevelt has presented to the National museum are not the only gifts of value which he has made to the institution. Some years ago when the colonel was hunting in Oklahoma, he secured a specimen of what at first was thought to be a coyote. The colonel had remembered that Woodhouse, a hunter-naturalist of sixty years previous, had obtained an animal in about the same part of the country which it was held was neither a wolf nor a coyote, but a sort of a connecting link between the two, larger than the true coyote and smaller than the true wolf.

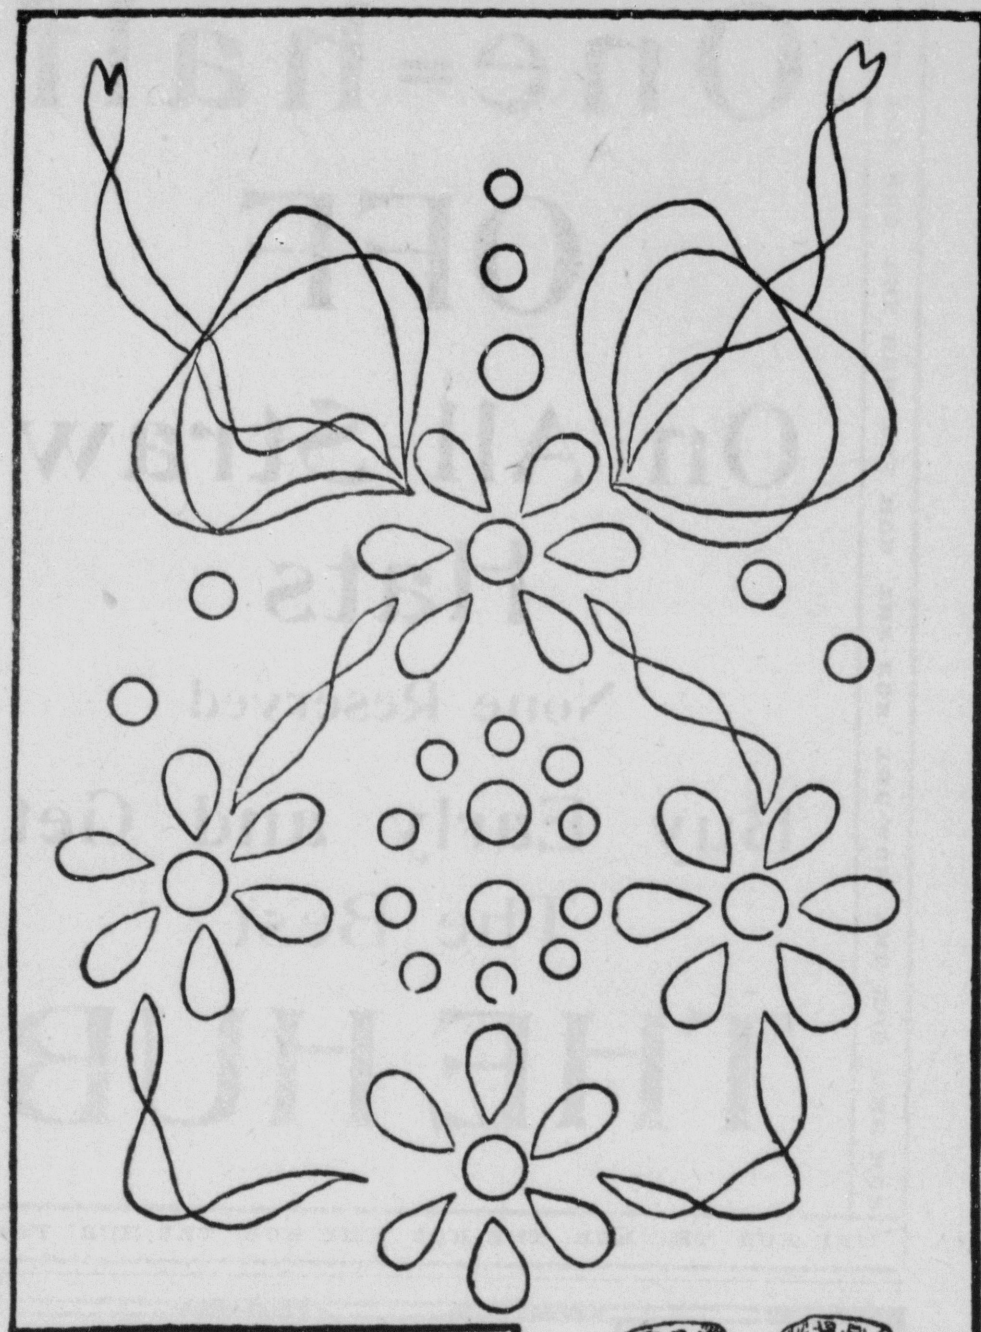

Colonel Roosevelt knew that there was some dispute as to the validity of the account of this species. He obtained an animal which was not full grown, but he concluded that it was different from either the coyote or the wolf and he thought it might be of the species or variety that Woodhouse had obtained. He sent the animal to the scientists in Washington and they became convinced after a study of the Woodhouse and the Roosevelt specimens that there no longer could be any doubt of the existence of a family intermediate between the coyotes and the wolves.

The result was that an expedition was despatched to the scene of the Roosevelt hunting, and success crowned its efforts. The knowledge which the former president had of the Woodhouse specimen and the study which he gave the specimen of his own taking led to the establishment of a scientific fact of considerable value. There is now a fine series of the intermediate wolves in the possession of the national authorities.

Nearly one hundred years ago an Englishman claimed that the bear of the Gulf states Louisiana and Mississippi, was a different species from the ordinary black bear. The matter was in dispute for years among the scientists. Finally Theodore Roosevelt secured some specimens of the Louisiana bear and sent them to Dr. C. Hart Merriam, then the chief of the biological survey in Washington. Dr. Merriam recently has been given charge of the natural history foundation made possible by the generosity of Mrs. E. H. Harriman.

Dr. Merriam took the Roosevelt bear specimens in hand, and after a long and painstaking study proved that the ordinary black bear of America and the bear of the cane brakes are different species, thus settling a point that had been in doubt for nearly a century. It was the Roosevelt interest in the study of natural history which led to the establishment of a fact of moment to the scientific world.

Dainty Embroidery

A Dainty bit of embroidery to pick up at odd moments is a little white apron for sewing, chafing dish, or afternoon tea wear. These are not meant for real utility, these wisps of lace and muslin—they are merely delightfully feminine little creations which women like to don, especially when they stir things up with a spoon in the popular chafing dish. Then, too, they do protect the gown a little, especially a light summery one.

The apron must above all else be the last word in fineness and exquisite daintiness—even though very simple the materials must be fine.

Hand embroidered aprons are the prettiest models in the whole apron family, and any girl or woman who knows how to embroider should lose no time in adding one of these attractive trifles to her summer outfit, or make one or two for the coming winter.

The apron sketched is a becoming shape, and easily made. The three panels are joined by strips of lace and edged with a frill of valenciennes. The belt is of fine lace beading through which a blue or pink satin ribbon is run, which forms the strings to tie the apron.

The material may be fine handkerchief linen, muslin or batiste, as one fancies. To transfer the design lay the paper on a board or table with the design side up, place the fabric over it, and pin firmly in each corner. The design will show through the material; with a sharp lead pencil trace over every line, which will leave a neat, clear tracing of the design on the fabric.

Embroider in French embroidery for the dots and flowers and a wee Kensington outline stitch for the bow-knot. The thread should be the finest mercerized cotton.

DAINTY IDEA IN LINGERIE THE ALWAYS USEFUL SERGE

Combination Garment of Corset Cover and Drawers Both Useful and Practical.

Among the bargains in lingerie to be found in the shops just now is a combination garment of corset cover and drawers that is both dainty and practical. The material is a soft nainsook, sheer but firm, neatly fashioned, with neck and sleeves edged with scalloped embroidery and the drawers finished with a ruffle of scalloped embroidery.

A pretty waist of dressy description, though by no means elaborate, is of cable net, black, made over a foundation of Japanese silk. Tucks of the net alternating with bands of black silk trim the waist lengthwise.

Tucks, headed by the silk bands, run around the arms and the long, close-fitting cuffs are trimmed prettily with the silk.

An accordion pleated ruffle (graduated) finishes the front.

This is an especially good model for an elderly woman, and one that will be serviceable for many occasions.

FANCIES OF FASHION

Scrim is a favorite for summer curtains.

The black satin coat of all lengths is favored.

About nine out of ten handsome gowns are collarless.

Black frills are in demand for black gowns or waists.

Among the new veillings are those with crepe-like borders.

Dyed linen laces are high style for linen and cotton dresses.

Sometimes the Dutch neck is outlined with tiny rosebuds of chiffon.

Foulards are much worn as shirt-waists, matching in color the cloth suit.

Eyellet embroidery is a favorite in the handsomest lingerie gowns this season.

Chiffon, voiles, marquisettes and silk crepes are having a wonderful rage.

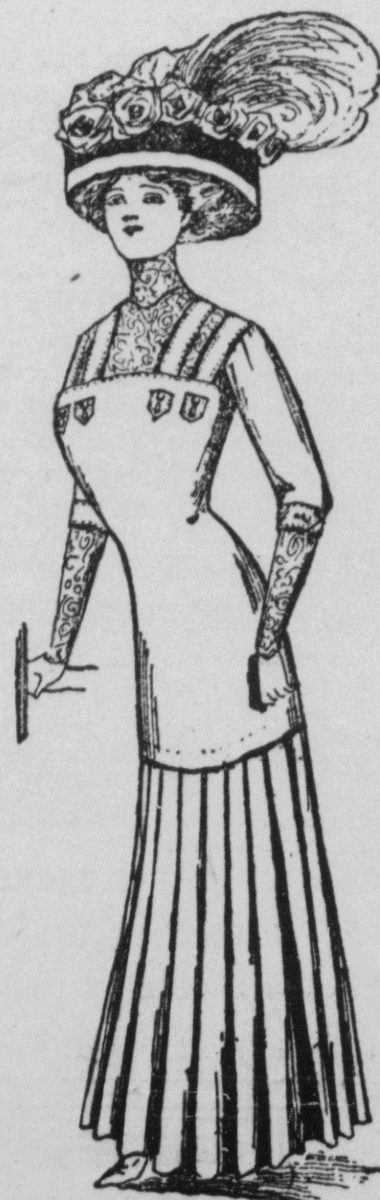

Tiny little rooster heads are used as trimming for small girls' everyday hats.

The yoke and collar matching the color of the material are not often seen now.

There is a much more noticeable bag at the waistline of the gowns this summer.

Here is Model for Dress That Will Make Up Admirably in That Material.

A serge dress, as well as being smart and wearing well, is always useful. The princess part of our model is taken to just pass the hips, where the plaited skirt is joined to it under a hem. Straps with pointed ends are taken across the shoulder and brought through openings which are cut each side front and buttonholed or bound. The material over-sleeves are quite plain; the under-sleeves and yoke are of lace.

Hat with velvet brim, edged with straw; it has a chiffon crown and is trimmed with roses and an aigrette.

Materials required: Six yards serge 48 inches wide, 1 1/4 yards lace.

Upon all handsome or dressy gowns, sash, girdle, belt or bow effects of ribbon appear.

THE BLOOD OF AN ENGLISHMAN

By LEONA ANSTINE SUTTER

The Cherub sniffed. He had very delicate olfactory, had the Cherub. "Mother," he said, sniffing again, "your lilacs are stale. I detect the odor of stale lilacs."

The Cherub's mother was curled up in a big leather chair and looked almost as young and tiny as the Cherub himself. The Cherub had been thinking that she looked very pretty in the pink dress that was just the color of her cheeks. She had been dreaming, and the Cherub was almost afraid to interrupt. Perhaps she was thinking up a story.

When he spoke about the lilacs she put out a pretty white hand and made a gesture for him to come to her. He was at her side with a bound and her arm closed about him. She had a way, perilous to his dignity, of hugging him at all kinds of unexpected times.

"Your mother will ring for James and have the vases emptied," she said with humorous deference, ringing a bell near her hand.

"The lilacs are no longer fresh. You may take them out James," she said when the servant appeared. He moved about in silent acquiescence doing her bidding. The Cherub wriggled from her lap.

"Why do you love lilacs so, mother?" he asked softly, fingering her dress. The Cherub was old for his years. Few things escaped him. The dream came into his mother's eyes again and he could see that her thoughts were far away. With childish intuition he did not interrupt but waited silently for her answer to his question. It came at last.

"Mother was very happy once—among the lilacs!" she answered, her mind sweet with a memory.

"Is it a story, mother?" he asked breathlessly.

"Yes," she whispered. "Yes," and he waited for her to begin, but she was silent.

"Do you know a story that you will not tell me?" he asked reproachfully. She caught him to her again with a little cry.

"Some day I will tell you, but not now," she said. "I am a wee little bit tired tonight and telling this story would not help it."

"Is it a sad story?" he asked.

"No," she said; "it is a happy story."

"Then how can it make you say?" he wondered aloud and she answered enigmatically: "Because it is so happy."

While he was busy with this puzzle the servant entered with a letter. His mother stretched out her hand for it eagerly but became very white when she saw the postmark. The Cherub saw that her fingers trembled. "Is it another letter from the same person?" he said observingly. "I should think you would get tired of them." But she did not hear. She was reading the closely written lines in the bold hand with hungry eyes.

This was the letter:

My Dear Little One: I am boyishly happy in anticipation of your surprise when you receive this and learn that I am in America. I did not tell you that I was coming because it is such a long journey and I did not wish to give you too long a wait to think about my coming for fear you would conjure up some reason why you should send me away as you did once before.

Of course you know why I came. I came to America for you, and I will not leave America without you. That summer you were ill in England you had so many scrapes. Do you remember that you said that you felt that you must wait until the Cherub was old enough to consent to an other father? How is the dear little fellow? It almost seems to me I know him. You have visualized him and characterized him so well in your dear letters. I know him so well that I am not afraid to take my chances with him. I won you that summer among the lilacs. I am in America now to win the Cherub, and to take you both back with me.

Tomorrow I shall run down from New York and be with you after dinner. Until then, dear one, with love that has been gathering force all these years,

ROBERT.

The letter fell from her hands into her lap and the Cherub saw that her eyes were shining. He had only a glimpse of her eyes, however, before she caught him and crumpled him against her. He could scarcely breathe and his hair fell down in his eyes.

"You always act so crazy when you get those letters," he said resentfully, brushing his curls from his eyes. She gave a little laugh.

"I will tell you that story now," she proposed conciliatingly. "The happy one." She knew by his shout that she was forgiven for her outrage of the slumbering man in him. He nestled against her knee.

"Do you remember the summer mother left you with grandmother and went to England to see if she could get strong and well? It was that summer that mother spent the happy hours among the lilacs. But she met a man there who was a personal friend of the king, the sort of a man she would like you to be when you grow up, tall and broad shouldered and splendid and brave and good!"

"The man who writes you the letters that have the lion and shield on the paper?" he asked then. "The man who wrote you the letter you got tonight?"

"Yes," she said. "Listen. Tomorrow night he will be here. He is coming to see us he says and he wishes to take us back to England with him. It all rests with you. Wouldn't you like to go away with this brave, good man whom a king even loves to honor, this prince-kind of a man?"

"With this Englishman?" he asked in hostile voice. "No." The obstinacy of his face disconcerted her.

"Why?" she asked. "Why? It has been very hard for me to be father and mother both to you! Do you not wish me to give you a father dear?"

"I will not have an Englishman for a father," he said decisively. "When there are Indians and Dutch and Irish to choose from why should you go and choose an Englishman?"

"Because, next to Americans, they are the nicest people on earth," she said, "and this Englishman in particular is very nice indeed. Why do you object to Englishmen?"

The same humorous deference she always showed to his opinion, and which had made him old beyond his years, was in the question.

"Well," he said, "do you think I want a father whom you can smell all over the house? I should be ashamed."

In spite of herself she laughed, she who had always been careful never to laugh at him. "What on earth do you mean?" she asked, but he had fled from her in a passion of tears.

Coupled with his fear of this terrible thing that was coming to pass was the sting of his pride that she had ridiculed him with her laughter. In the hall she caught him, a pathetic, tearful cherub, with one foot on the lowest chair.

"Come back," she pleaded in her winsomest voice, holding out her arms.

"No," he choked. "You would only laugh." With a sob he fled up the stairs. At the top his nurse met him and he suffered her ministrations. His mother respected her dismissal. He was fast asleep when she tiptoed into the nursery, and an hour later when he awoke he drew her head down to his with his baby arms when she went in to kiss him good-night.

"Oh, mother, need I have another father?" he sobbed. "Need I?"

She had been sitting there dreaming below and had forgotten everything except that for some reason her boy did not want another father.

"No, baby," she whispered. "No. Mother will just go on being both father and mother to you." A tear fell on his cheek. He lay awake a long time worrying over that tear.

In the morning he saw that she was troubled and sad. He fluttered about her, showering upon her a hundred small attentions. He even condescended once to place a tiny speck upon her cheek, but she seemed oblivious. Try as he would he could not make her happy. Near noon he went into the conservatory by himself and sat there thinking a long time. He wished to make her happy, but he could not come to it.

"It would be a disgrace," he moaned, dry-eyed. For the rest of the day he avoided her, playing by himself in the grounds about the house. Once he stole quite near the porch and saw her reading the letter that had come the night before. There were tears in her eyes. They burdened him.

After lunch he went voluntarily upstairs and gave himself into his nurse's hands in preparation for his nap. "She" was nowhere about when he came downstairs after his bath, and it was not until she was dressing for dinner that his tiny tap came upon her door. He gave a little cry when he entered and saw her.

"You look so pretty," he told her, eyeing her gravely. "I almost think you look prettier than I ever saw you. Are you dressing for that Englishman?"

She saw that he was still hostile and she stooped down to him and he laid his soft cheek lovingly against her white neck with a toleration of the caress that was new. After dinner, when they were both sitting together in the big, leather chair, he said, "I want to ask a favor, mother. I want to sleep on the couch in the music room tonight, and I want you to leave the door open so that I can see the Englishman."

So he was put to bed there and the door left open, as he wished. A little after eight she tiptoed in, but he was faking sleep and she went softly out again.

When the door bell rang at eight-thirty the Cherub, watching through the door, saw her spring out of her chair and then sink down again. He thought she was going to faint, she suddenly looked so white. In another moment the curtain of the drawing room parted and the tallest man the Cherub had ever seen came in. Then he saw his mother lifted up in the tall man's arms and held there. She acted as though she liked it, and the Cherub was amazed to see her kiss him. He had to hold on to the edge of the couch then to keep from getting up.

"You have not changed at all, Dot," the Englishman said, when they were seated close together in the conversation chair. He reached over and took her hand and the Cherub heard him draw a deep breath. "What is your answer going to be this time?"

"The Cherub has refused to give his consent," she said gravely, and the Englishman saw tears in her eyes, at which he frowned.

"What is his objection to me?" he asked gravely, or with pretense of gravity.

"He said—" she began, then stopped in confusion, realizing that she could not tell him after all.

"He said—what?" the tall man asked. "Why do you not tell me what he said?"

"Oh, it was something about your being English," she confessed, with a blush that puzzled him. Just then there was an interruption. "Mother," the Cherub called. "Mother!"

For once she did not jump at his call. "Go to sleep, dear," she called to him softly.

"Mother, dear," he called again, and was amazed to see that still she did not rise. It was unheard of. He made one more effort.

"I've got a hair on my tongue, a hair on my tongue," he wailed. "Oh, mother, please come here." This always brought his nurse. It seemed to terrify his mother also. She crossed the room to him quickly.

She knelt beside him and felt with her fingers in his mouth for the hair. The effort was a vain one.

"If you think so much of him," he whispered finally, still strangling, "I'll have him for a father, and maybe I'll get used to the smell after awhile."

She hugged him ecstatically. "What on earth do you mean, you funny baby, about—the smell?" she questioned.

"Fe, Fi, Fo, Fum, I smell the blood of an Englishman!" he quoted solemnly. "You can smell their blood, Englishmen's," he said with a shudder. "It must be awful!"

It was out!

She had hard work to restrain her laughter, then, but she muffled it in his shoulder as she caught him up in her arms and bore him wriggling into the drawing room. She put him down in the lap of the tall Englishman. "This is the Cherub," she said.

He felt himself held in arms that were very tender and strong, and as he looked up he had to admit that the Englishman was very handsome. Then he burrowed his head in the Englishman's shoulders, sniffing.

"He doesn't," he said to his mother, wonderingly. "Perhaps he isn't a real Englishman!"

"What on earth is the boy talking of?" asked the tall man; but the Cherub cried out in sudden alarm and confusion that he was not to be told.

The Cherub sat there several moments studying the interloper who wished to be his father.

"If she wants you so terribly," he said at last, condescendingly, "I suppose I'll have to consent; but I'd much have preferred an Indian. They look so grand in their feathers and paint."

MONUMENTS FOR MONARCHS

Most Famous Ones of Any Age Are the Pyramids of Egypt.

When kings are buried all the resources of labor and art are often exhausted to provide a fit resting place for their remains. The very name "mausoleum" is derived from the tomb of Mausolus, erected so long ago as 353 B. C. This tomb had a basement 65 feet high, a colonnade 23 feet high and over that a pyramid. On the apex of the pyramid stood a colossal group of the deceased king and his wife, the statuary being 14 feet in height. London Tit-Bits says in this country the most famous mausoleum is, of course, the one at Frogmore, near Windsor, where rest the remains of the prince consort and Queen Victoria.

The pyramids are the most famous royal monuments of any age. One of the best known of these was originally higher than St. Paul's cathedral and had an area about the size of Lincoln's Inn Fields. The Egyptian monarchs amused themselves during their lifetime in building these splendid receptacles for their dead and embalmed bodies. The longer the life of the king, the greater the pyramid which was to perpetuate his memory. One hundred thousand men are said to have been employed for 30 years in the construction of one of these magnificent monuments to the great dead. Obelisks, like Cleopatra's needle, on the embankment, were also used in Egypt to draw attention to the burying places of great potentates. In our own country Stonehenge is held by competent authorities to be the monument of ancient British kings.

In India, at Agra, is the gorgeous Taj Mahal, a mausoleum built by Emperor Shah Jehan for himself and his favorite wife. Twenty thousand men were continuously employed on it for 20 years. It is exceedingly beautiful. There is much rich mosaic work in the interior, and the principal parts of the building are of white marble. The mausoleum itself is in the center, surmounted by a dome, while at the corners are four minarets, each 133 feet high.

Don't Eat Too Fast.

Professor Fisher, says that one of the principal causes of excessive fatigue is hurrying at meals, which induces the excessive use of the high-protein foods (that is, meats, fish, eggs and other hearty foods), which are stimulating in their effects. This stimulation the stomach craves when food is not properly prepared for it by thorough mastication. If excessive use of high-protein foods is the primary cause of early fatigue, while at the same time the high price of these very articles of food helps hold the laboring man in poverty, the importance of this discovery is immeasurable.

Retort Courteous.

Miss DePrymm, while walking with her small sister, paused to chastise orally a bold, bad man.

"Sir," she exclaimed indignantly, "what do you mean by staring at me?" "Beg pardon, madam," answered the b. b. m., "but I wasn't staring at you. I was just admiring your little granddaughter."

GATHERED SMILES

DECLARED OFF.

"When can you spare the time for our marriage, Marion?" the betrothed man asked.

The woman consulted her engagement book. "Three o'clock next Friday afternoon," she replied.

"Oh, that will be out of the question," he cried protestingly. "There's a special meeting of the Glitter Gold company that I must attend at that time."

"Well, it's the only time I have," she told him with an air of easy resignation. "Every other hour for the next two years is filled up."

The man jerked his shoulder irritably. "I guess we'll have to call our little matter off, then," he said.

"It seems to be inevitable," she agreed, indifferently.

And so they parted, for with some people marriage is but an incident, and an incident is, of course, too trivial to deserve the sacrifice of an event.

Interested Them.

"I have here," says the inventor to the capitalists, "two plans for radical changes in sleeping cars."

"Yes?" murmurs the capitalists. "This plan increases the space given to each passenger and makes the berth much more comfortable by—"

"Can't consider it."

"Well, the second plan makes the car uncomfortable, but it enables it to carry half as many more passengers, and—"

"Give us the complete details, with estimates of cost."—Life.

Reason For Doubt.

The obese party with the big diamond in his tie claimed to be a self-made man and a millionaire.

"But," we asked, "were you not happier when you were earning $1.15 a day by the sweat of your brow?"

"No," he answered, "I am happier now than at any previous stage of the game."

Thus were we led to doubt the millionaire portion of the claim.

More Frenzied Finance.

Bleeker—I don't see why our government should tax the people or need a tariff. It has exclusive control of the greatest money making business on earth.

Meeker—Referring to the mint? Bleeker—No. The stamps we pay 2 cents apiece for cost the government only 7 cents a thousand.

BETTER.

The Bricklayer's Wife—Dreaming, eh? I suppose you were building castles in the air.

The Bricklayer—No. I'm mending chimneys of castles in the air.

How He Won Her.

Said she: "Through life I'll walk alone, in sunshine and stormy weather." But he bought an aeroplane next day—And now they are flying together.

Out of Season.

"Dese pure-food guys make me tired," muttered Micky Jones, as he looked over the newspaper. "What's de trouble, kiddo?" asked his chum.

"Why, in de winter months dey always get off dat gag about ice cream being adulterated an' unhealthy. Why don't dey spring it in de summer when de galls are nagging yer every hour to treat?"

All in the Game.

Edyth—Have you heard the latest? Mayme—Don't know. Let's hear it. Edyth—Fred says his father threatens to disinherit him if he marries me.

Mayme—Fudge! That's merely a bluff to make you think his father has money.

Flaw in the Theory.

"Every girl," remarked the fussy old bachelor, "should learn her father's business and thus become independent."

"Oh, I don't know," replied the fair maid. "My father is—er—a telegraph lineman."

Not Fit to Print.

"I suppose a man who plays on a trombone calls himself a trombonist?" "I believe so. Other people call him various names."

Success in Medicine.

First Young Doctor—When will you be able to get married?

Second Young Doctor—I'm waiting now for only three operations more.—Life.

AS THEY SHOULD BE

Ebenezer—I say, parson, I've thinkin' dat afore yo' gits froo wid yo' congregation yo'll have ter have ah piano-maker wid yo'.

Parson Jones—What yo' mean by dat?

Ebenezer—Cause he could make dem square an' upright.

DIDN'T UNDERSTAND

Bings—I hear you've broken off with Miss Kohn. Weren't your relations pleasant?

Bangs—Mine were. It was her relations who were doing the kicking.

GENEROUS

Mrs. Torker—I hear that your husband is very generous.

Mrs. Noowedd—Very! I gave him a box of cigars for a birthday present and he never smoked one of them. He gave them all away to his friends.

USED TO HEAT

Attendant—It's no use, your highness, can't get it hot enough for that fellow.

Satan—How's that?

Attendant—He was in the Turkish bath business before he came down.

METHOD IN AFFLICTION

Prospective Employer—Can you cook on the chafing dish?

Cook—No, ma'am.

Prospective Employer—Then I'll give you a dollar more a week.

Still in the Running.

Great Caesar crossed the Rubicon. A rived small, though we. Great Caesar now is dead and gone—But the Rubicon's there yet.

Made a Difference.

Little Willie—What is logic, pa?

Pa—Logic, my son, is your line of argument in a controversy.

Little Willie—And what is sophistry?

Pa—The other fellow's.

"That poor little widow's case is a very pathetic one. And she has such touching little ways."

"She has? How much did she touch you for?"

TO DRAIN BOTTOM LANDS.

Land Owners Along Muscatatuck River May Construct Big Ditch.

For some time there has been considerable talk regarding the construction of a big ditch in the Muscatatuck bottoms to drain the low lands and thus make them more valuable for farming. The soil is very fertile and the value of the land would be increased if such a drain was built.
The matter has recently been revived, as seen from the following article from the Crothersville Herald:

There is on foot a movement to dig a ditch beginning at the Chris Orr bridge and running through the river bottom for six miles. This ditch would be of great benefit to river bottom farmers, who are never assured of a crop because of the overflows almost every year.

The cost of this immense ditch will be about $10,000 and will be the first dredgeboat ditch in this part of the state. John Huebner, a prominent farmer across whose land the ditch will go, and Smart brothers, who own the old Frank Falk place, say that it will raise the value of their land to twice what it now is. The land through which the big cut will go is of blackest loam and will be worth more than $100.00 per acre when properly drained.

The ditch when completed will be seventeen feet wide at the bottom, thirty feet at the top and about fifteen feet deep, giving it a carrying capacity nearly ten times that of the river because of its straightness. It will cross the river in one or two places.

It is also proposed to dig a smaller ditch beginning at the Wemiller bridge on the west fork and dig south and west on the west side of the creek, cutting off several big bends and connecting with the big ditch.

So far no opposition has been offered to the building of the big drain.

Fine Apples.

Frank Rhoads, who resides three miles west of Cortland, has sent to this office two fine apples of an excellent variety. The combined weight of the apples were over one pound and a half.

Won't Need a Crutch.

When Editor J. P. Sossman of Cornelius, N. C., bruised his leg badly, it started an ugly sore. Many salves and ointments proved worthless.
Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve healed it thoroughly. Nothing is so prompt and sure for Ulcers, Boils, Burns, Bruises, Cuts, Corns, Sores, Pimples,
Eczema or Piles. 25c at Andrews-Schwenk

Missouri Onions.

Jesse Weaver, who recently returned from southwestern Missouri has on exhibit at this office two fine onions which were raised from the seed. The onions are much larger than usually seen in this part of the country.

SUNDAY BASE BALL.

Crothersville Will Play "Panhandle" Team From Indianapolis.

The Crothersville "Blues" will meet the "Panhandle" team from Indianapolis Sunday afternoon, and from all indications the game will be an interesting exhibition of base ball. The visitors played at Crothersville several weeks ago and succeeded in taking the big end of the score, but since that time the local team has become much stronger and believes it will be able to win the game. A special car will be run to the grounds.

Saved From Awful Peril.

"I never felt so near my grave," writes Lewis Chamlin, of Manchester Ohio, R. R. No. 3, "as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 115 pounds in spite of many remedies and the best doctors. And that I am alive today is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 160 pounds and can work hard. It also cured my four children of croup.
Infallible for Coughs and Colds, its
the most certain remedy for La-

JAMES A. PATTEN.

Well Known Broker Who Has Finally Retired From Pitts.

New York, Aug. 19.—In line with his recent announcement that he would retire from active speculation, James
A. Patten's seat on the New York Stock Exchange, which he has held since 1898, has been sold for $70,000.
The name of the purchaser has not been made public.

MAKING A TRAVESTY
OF LAW SAYS COURTJudge Kersten Denounces Chicago Jury Fixers.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Judge Kersten, in whose court Lee O'Neil Browne is up for retrial on a charge of buying votes for Senator Lorimer, was compelled to dismiss six more veniremen. This makes 111 veniremen dismissed from the last three panels on their own statements that they have been "approached" with reference to their possible service as jurors.

"I do not know who is tampering with the veniremen," said the court.
"I do not take sides, but someone is doing corrupt work. I sincerely hope we will find out who is guilty, and that they will be brought to the bar of justice. They are making a travesty of the administration of the law." The court's remarks were addressed to the lawyers and veniremen generally.

SOLDIERS TO MEET

Fort Benjamin Harrison to Be Scene of Great Maneuvers.

Indianapolis, Aug. 19.—Extensive arrangements and preparations are being made for the quartering of thousands of troops which will participate in the biennial maneuvers to be held at Fort Benjamin Harrison throughout the month of September.

Besides the regular troops the national guard of Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia will participate. It is possible that the Sixth cavalry from Detroit, Mich., will march from Fort Wayne to the fort. The Tenth infantry of Fort Benjamin Harrison will go into camp on Aug. 30. Lieutenant Colonel Cruise has arrived from Chicago and Brigadier General Charles Hodges, who is to be in command of the camp, will arrive next week.

Fatal Yard Accident.

Logansport, Ind., Aug. 19.—Robert Meadows, who had both legs crushed off in the Vandalia yards, is dead at St. Joseph hospital. Herbert Labounty, who suffered the loss of a leg when Meadows was injured, is in a critical condition and is not expected to live.
The accident was caused by the switch engine kicking a box car into several others on a siding. The two men were fixing an airbrake hose when the accident occurred.

Double Tragedy in Tenderloin.

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 19.—Because his wife was leading a wayward life and refused to abandon the underworld, John Roth, a saloon man, entered a resort in the tenderloin where he found his wife, and shot her to death in the presence of several people. He then committed suicide. The couple had been married only a few months.

Thought Him a Ghost.

Logansport, Ind., Aug. 19.—Reported to have died last winter in the south,
Joseph Kilgore, formerly of this city, stepped off a train here and surprised his friends. Several of them were so astounded at seeing him that they backed away, and it was some time before they could be convinced that he was a creature of flesh and blood.

The charred remains of the Rev.
George Watson, Jewish rabbi, aged seventy-one years, were found in the ruins of the Lindsay building at Jacksonville, Ill., which was destroyed by fire.

Stanley Ketchel, the middleweight title holder, has broken down physically and may never indulge in a championship battle again.
